“Netiquette” is etiquette for the Internet

Are you familiar with the rules of polite interaction in discussion boards, email, and other forms of online communication? To make sure we’re all on the same page, here are some basic guidelines for communicating effectively and respectfully online. Please keep them in mind as you interact with others in this class.

- Remember there's a person on the other side of every email or discussion post.
  Communicate with other members of this online class with the same courtesy that’s expected in face-to-face classes.

- Respect and accept people's differences.
  Keep in mind that others may come from backgrounds and have views that vary significantly from your own.

- Be civil when asking questions or making comments.
  Feel free to express disagreement with the instructor and other students, but make sure you do so in a way that is constructive and isn’t abusive, threatening, or harassing.

- Write in a professional style and tone.
  For example: avoid abbreviations, check your spelling and grammar, and avoid typing in all caps. (THIS IS THE ONLINE EQUIVALENT OF YELLING.)

- Be careful when using humor, and especially sarcasm.
  They’re easy to misunderstand online because they rely on facial expressions, tone of voice, and cultural understanding.

- Observe email etiquette.
  It’s polite to start your emails with a salutation (ex: “Dear” or “Hello”). You should also put your full name at the end of the email to help the other person identify you.

- Keep communications relevant to the class.
  Don’t send unsolicited email (ex: chain mails), and avoid off-topic discussion posts in support of a cause, religion, or activity.
